1. What is professional ethics, and why investment professionals need it

Professional ethics are the moral principles governing appropriate conduct within a profession. Investment professionals handle other people's money and confidential information, creating a heightened need for trust — a client, employer or the wider market must be able to rely on an analyst's recommendations and conduct being honest, competent, and free from self-serving bias.

Sample of the practice examination (Question One of Five)

Note on format. The full paper includes a complete practice examination laid out the way a real KASNEB CIFA paper is laid out — timed, five compulsory 20-mark questions — so you can rehearse the exact exam format before sitting the real thing. This is an original practice paper, not a reproduction of any actual KASNEB past paper.
